Fund manager commentary

Markets were directionless in September as investors digested the news of ongoing trade tensions between America and China. The US announced tariffs on an additional $200bn of Chinese imports at a rate of 10%, rising to 25% at the start of 2019; China immediately responded with $60bn of tariffs on US imports into China. President Trump reiterated his protectionist views at the United Nations General Assembly stating that "we reject the ideology of globalism and embrace the doctrine of patriotism". However, as the month drew to a close, the US concluded negotiations on a new trade agreement with Canada, following on from the deal with Mexico last month, which will replace the 24-year-old North American Free trade agreement (NAFTA) with the U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA). The agreement, which covers a region that trades more than $1 trillion annually, made only minor changes to existing trading terms.

Equity markets were flat over the month, but once again there was significant dispersion within regions with Japanese equities rising and emerging markets and Europe lagging. We have been increasing our allocation to Japan whilst reducing European equities this year. Japanese corporate margins have increased to record levels whilst valuations look reasonable and in contrast to many enterprises globally, their balance sheets have very little debt. In Europe we have become increasingly concerned about the political backdrop; in September this reared its head again with Italian assets falling sharply on the back of an announcement that its budget deficit would exceed European limits.

Fixed income markets were also mixed with developed government bonds and investment grade bonds falling whilst emerging market bonds recovered somewhat after their recent weakness. The Federal Reserve increased interest rates for the third time this year and confirmed that they expected to do so again in December. The committee released their estimates for future rate rises, the "dots", showing that they expect to continue to raise rates in 2019 and 2020. Finally, within our Diversifying Assets funds, our allocation to macro funds bounced back after a challenging August.
