Investment objective

Long-term capital appreciation through investing in a diversified portfolio of emerging market equities. Combines top-down macroeconomic themes and bottom-up company analysis to identify undervalued stocks across the full market capitalisation spectrum. Aims to outperform MSCI EM Total Return index by 3-5% annually.

Fund manager commentary

During August the Fund lagged the MSCI Emerging Markets index by 3.2%*, despite delivering a positive absolute return.

Unusually, this disappointing performance was widely spread, with all major markets proving a drag, led by China. We had been most concerned not to inadvertently position ourselves on the wrong side of the AI hardware trade, but this was not at all the issue in August.

The underperformance was almost entirely due to stock selection, with numerous unrelated individual positions across various sectors seeing significant sell-offs. Around two thirds of this occurred outside the AI space.

Thin summer liquidity may have contributed to some moves. A number of our stocks with exposure to consumer spending reported underwhelming Q2 numbers. In other cases, we saw a reversal of previously solid performance on relatively in-line results as markets pivoted away from previous winners. Still, it is difficult to identify a strong common thread: it appears to have been simply an unfortunate month.

While we have put a number of our stocks on review, we do not see a wholesale change in fundamental value and have not made major changes to the portfolio. An ongoing rise in cost of capital driven by global bond weakness is probably the strongest headwind, but this should be true of the market as a whole. Our focus on near-term cashflows and strong balance sheets should actually provide resilience in this context.

We do remain mindful of being caught in value traps. Currently the risk we see is good businesses being squeezed by a stubbornly weak macro environment, especially in China. In such cases, recovery may lie beyond a reasonable investment horizon and deeper discounts might be warranted than we had previously assumed. At the same time, our experience has shown that the best time to buy good businesses is when they are facing headwinds and market scepticism. Balancing this risk and opportunity is at the core of what we do.
