Investment objective

Sustainable investing is a catch-all term for investing in a way that accounts for being socially responsible and investing ethically while also seeking returns. At PAM we use the term sustainable investing to capture the various methods of incorporating concerns around Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) issues into our investment decision making processes.

Fund manager commentary

Escalating geopolitical tensions and the implementation of tariffs from the US on imports from China, Canada and Mexico weighed on financial markets last month. The continued uncertainty around how far tariffs will go also extended into the global economy, as we saw downward revisions to GDP in the US along with weaker sentiment from businesses and consumers.

Despite this, the Federal Reserve looked beyond the potential inflationary pressures from tariffs and maintained its policy stance in March, keeping its policy rate at 4.25-4.5% and reiterated that it expected two rate cuts this year.

Against this backdrop, US equities saw a sharp decline, with the S&P 500 falling 8% (in sterling terms) as investors assessed the risks of a global trade war. European equities, which initially rallied on news of Germany's planned 500bn spending package, ended the month down 1.6%. UK and Japanese equities also declined, though they outperformed the US in relative terms, finishing down 2% and 1.6%, respectively.

Although major equity indices fell, our allocation to the Schroder Global Sustainable Value fund helped offset some of that decline, as investors looked to rotate away from economically sensitive and overvalued sectors. Additionally, the Janus Henderson Global Sustainable Equity fund outperformed its benchmark by 1.4% last month, supporting overall returns.

Fixed income markets experienced a volatile month. While corporate bond spreads remain tight, we did see some modest widening last month. However, our holding in the iShares Development Bank Bond fund offered diversification and posted a gain of 0.2%.

Alternatives added to performance, with both the Bluefield Solar Income Fund and NextEnergy Solar Fund generating positive returns of 0.9% and 0.6% respectively. Both continue to trade at significant discounts, and we maintain our view that there is meaningful upside potential.

Diversifying assets detracted from performance, with negative returns from absolute return strategies and the Yen. However, gains from our US 2s10s Steepener strategy helped offset some of the weakness, as longer-term yields moved higher.
